

AMENDMENTS TO THE SPECIFICATION

Please replace the entire Abstract with the following new

Abstract:

A method of controlling a communication terminal and a communication terminal that communicates with a base station. The communication terminal having one or more functions different from a communication function, and the execution of the different functions being limited based on a registration process including receiving and registering controlling data transmitted by the base station.

B1